NEWS OF ALEXANDRIA

Rev. I. M. Green Succumbs to Attack of Appendicitis

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 22.—Rev. Ivan M. Green, a well-known Episcopal minister, died at 11:30 o'clock today at the residence of his father at Stafford Court House, Va. He was thirty years old, and besides his wife leaves a little son, His widow was a Miss Kate Makiy of this city, to whom he was married about three years ago. Rev. Mr. Green was ordained at the Episcopal Theological Seminary, where he received his training for the ministry, and at various times has officiated at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here.

Up to the time of his illness Rev. Mr. Green was in charge of a church at Clinton Forge, Va. Several weeks ago he underwent a surgical operation for appendicitis.

The funeral will be held at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning from the Episcopal Church at Aquia Creek, and burial will be in the family burial ground at Concord.

Alice Mills, thirty-seven years old, was arrested this afternoon and locked up at police headquarters pending investigation of a white slave charge. Violet Brown, twenty-three years old, whose home she says is in Philadelphia, is detained by the police as a witness.

Ochoola and William Moss, colored, fifteen and eight years old, respectively, were arrested this afternoon by Police-men Gill and Beach on a charge of stealing two suits of clothes and two pairs of slippers while removing waste paper from two stores.

John Young, colored, twenty-seven years old, who says his home is in Richmond, was arrested to-night by Police-man Wilkinson on a charge of stealing a quantity of meat and butter from the residence of Mrs. Finley, 267 North Columbus street, where he had been employed to put in some wood. The police say they expect to fasten on Young several petty thefts.

The Young Men's Sodality Lyceum Hall will hereafter be opened two afternoons each week for the use of the women of the congregation of St. Mary's Catholic Church for both social and athletic amusements.

The women of the congregation will meet next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock to perfect arrangements for the "ladies' afternoon."

The committee appointed by President Desmond for that purpose is composed of the president, together with M. J. McFarland, C. Raymond Hellmuth, William H. Vaughn, and Frank Nugent. The reunion has arranged for an oyster roast December 1.

At a meeting of Fitzgerald Council, Knights of Columbus, held at St. Mary's Hall to-night, officers were nominated, and they will be elected at a meeting which will be held in December.

POLICE WORKING ON THIRD CRIME

"Do you see the man who assaulted you?" Bennett looked at Smith and nodded in the affirmative.

"Did Smith assault you with the hatchet?" Bennett remains unshaken.

A breathless pause followed, and then Bennett, turning his head so that he was looking at Smith, nodded "Yes." The questions were repeated several times, but Bennett was unshaken. Each time he accused Smith of the assault. Physically, Bennett said the patient was in his right mind despite his critical condition.

Fearing that too much excitement would cause Bennett to grow weaker, the prisoner was ordered from the room and moved to the station, where the examination to which he had been subjected since early morning was resumed. He answered questions in the dogged manner which had characterized all his statements since his arrest, endeavoring, the police say, to weave a cloth of falsehoods.

Mrs. Davis in Custody.
Mrs. Frankie Davis, "the woman in the case," was captured after a search of more than thirty-six hours, by Detective Sgt. Grant. Grant traced Mrs. Davis to about a dozen houses, where she was known and had stopped over night, but it was not until after noon yesterday that he was given the "tip" which enabled him to locate the woman.

He first went to a house in South Patrick street, Alexandria, where he was told the woman had not been seen in weeks. From there Grant went to the brick yard of the Miller company, at Riverside, about one mile and a half from Mount Vernon. J. H. Davis, stepfather of Mrs. Davis, is employed at the brick yard. From the yard Grant went to New Riverdale, where the Davis family lives.

Found with Children.
The detective found Mrs. Davis on the front porch with her two small children about her knees. He placed her under arrest, but she asked him not to let her mother know what had befallen her.

"I will invent a story for mother," said Mrs. Davis, and she went into the house and said she had been summoned to appear before Judge De Lacy to make arrangements so that her husband, Clarence W. Davis, could be forced to support the children.

The mother was satisfied with this explanation, and Mrs. Davis left the house with Grant. She wore the black felt hat, trimmed with black plumes, which is claimed by Mrs. Jennie Peary, of 1231 Maryland avenue northeast. Mrs. Peary said Mrs. Davis took the hat away the last time she called. Mrs. Davis wore a black suit, black gloves, and carried an imitation alligator skin purse. She is pretty, and has large blue eyes, dark hair, and an attractive figure.

When Grant and Mrs. Davis were taken to board a trolley for Washington they were met by Detective Sgt. E. J. Hingame and Detective Kleindienst, and the four rode to the city together. They went at once to police headquarters, where Mrs. Davis was examined by Chief of Detectives Boardman. She was then removed to the House of Detention, where she is held for investigation.

"I have been married nine years," said Mrs. Davis to a reporter for The Washington Herald, "but I am only twenty-five years old. I have known James Smith several months. I was examined by the street one night, and felt foggy. Smith addressed me, and we became acquainted. I am willing to tell the police all I know, but it is going to ruin me. I can never be the same. I know what it will mean to my children to have their mother mixed up in a thing like this."

Met Near Mickle Store.
"Yes, I met James Smith near the Mickle store just before or after the murder. I made an appointment to meet him there, and I was waiting at Seventh street and New York avenue when Smith joined me. He came up to me between 6 and 7 o'clock. No, I cannot fix the time nearer than that. No, he exhibited no signs of nervousness, and if he had just killed Mr. Mickle he did not seem to be in the least agitated."

"Smith and I walked around the streets until about 9 or 9:30 o'clock, and then I left him. Yes, I am certain I left him before 9:30 o'clock. I don't know where he went. I went to the home of a friend, Mr. Owen G. Ward, of 1024 Seventh street southwest. I have known him for a long time and I often visit the family. I spent the night there. Yes, I spent Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday nights at the Owen home."

"I went to Washington Saturday and went to my stepfather's home at New Riverdale. Yes, Smith and I used to correspond. The last letter he sent me was written several weeks ago and addressed in care of Mrs. Jennie Peary, at 1231 Maryland avenue northeast, and I did not get the letter. He told me it was returned to him, with the information that she was not at the address. I was not at Mrs. Peary's house at that time, but I used to receive mail there."

"Seems to Cap Climax."
"Yes, I lived at 50 I street northeast with Mrs. Hannah Shannahan, and also at 1220 Union street southwest. For a time I lived in H street, between North Capitol and First streets northeast, but I forgot the number of the house now. Yes, I have lived in several other houses about the city, and I have had a hard lot. But this seems to cap the climax."

"I knew nothing of any murder until the detective arrested me today. I had not read any of the papers, and no one at my stepfather's house spoke about it. No, I did not run away, of course, for I did not know any wrong had been done."

Wilbur Wilson Stout, who "squealed" on his "pal," James Smith, and gave information which resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Frankie Davis, who in turn gave evidence that Smith was near the scene of the killing, while arriving in Washington early this morning.

Stout was arrested in Newport News yesterday afternoon by Detective Frederick Cornwell, who found a letter in possession of the prisoner, believed to have been stolen from William Anderson, the woodyard proprietor, at the time the monkey wrench was taken. Stout will be "grilled" at police headquarters shortly after his arrival this morning. The police believe his testimony will be the most damaging yet adduced against James Smith in connection with the Mickle murder.

Started by Visitor.
James E. Hayes, an operator at the branch office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, in Wisconsin avenue northwest, and a brother of Mrs. Annie Mickle, wife of the murdered tobaccoist, last night told of a visit paid the Mickle residence, in Mount Vernon place, about a week before the murder by a man who professed to know Mickle, but whom the latter failed to recognize and peremptorily ordered away. The man, Hayes said, was caught in the act of peeping through a crack in the frosted glass set in the front door or through the keyhole about 7 o'clock in the evening.

One of Mrs. Mickle's manicurist assistants had come to leave the Mickle home about that time. She walked to the front door, and opening it quickly, was startled to see a man suddenly rise from a stooping posture and confront her. The assistant screamed, and Miss Lillie Hayes, sister of Mrs. Mickle, the latter, and her little daughter, aged eleven years, all crowded to the entrance.

The man said he was looking for some one who went into the Mickle home for a manicure a few minutes before. He said he knew Mr. Mickle, or Billy, as he called him, and the woman suggested that he go to the cigar store.

"ADENOID MARK PRISON PATHWAY FOR CHILDREN"

—JUDGE JULIAN W. MACK.

Startling Statement Made by Prominent Jurist.

DR. DAVIDSON CONCURS

Juvenile Offenses Largely Due to Physical Conditions.

Judge of Commerce Court and Superintendent of Public Schools, Speaking at Meeting of Associated Charities, Took Advanced Views on the Conservation of the Child—Parents Responsible.

The need of directing more attention toward the physical condition of children so as to prevent juvenile delinquency and promote education was emphasized and urged during the discussion of "The conservation of the child" at the thirteenth annual meeting of the Associated Charities of the District last night at Rauscher's. Judge Julian W. Mack and Dr. William M. Davidson dwelt on the need of physical education, and told what harm the lack of such education is now causing society.

FROM ADENOID TO "PEN."

"There's a direct road from the adenoid growths to the penitentiary," declared Judge Mack, who is president of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, former judge of the Juvenile Court of Chicago, and now judge of the Court of Commerce. "The conservation of the child from the viewpoint of prevention of juvenile delinquency."

"An enormously large percentage of the juvenile offenders," continued Judge Mack, "have committed wrong because of physical and mental defects. The juvenile offenses are the result of adenoid growths and defects of hearing and eyesight. There is a great need of testing the children by adenoid means. There should be mental and physical examination of the children, and the result of the examination should be told the parents and the public school teachers, so that conditions might be improved."

Davidson Follows Suit.

Speaking of the same subject, Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, in his address on "The conservation of the child from the standpoint of education," reiterated the thought of Judge Mack.

"Not until the parents and the school teachers obtain complete information regarding the physical and moral condition of the child," said Dr. Davidson, "will the child be properly conserved. Physical education is one of the great scholastic problems of the day. Our district schools have already in operation certain methods which tend toward the advancement of this important educational factor. We now have special schools for abnormal children, and we have medical and dental inspectors to look after the physical condition of the children. And it will, this question is to be emphasized in the district schools during the present school year as never before."

Judge Mack divided his speech into a consideration of three classes of children—dependent, neglected, and delinquent ones. Speaking of the first class, he said:

Mother Is All Important.

"There can be no substitute for the good mother, and consequently every effort should be made to prevent the separation of children from their parents. There can be no greater crime than to separate the child from the mother, so long as the mother is fit for the child and the child is fit for the mother. Such separation is a crime against the child. They are and are highly dangerous for the mother. No mother should be compelled to give up her child because of poverty. The problem should be given benefits of home life. But the homes must be real homes in every sense of the word to enforce this theory."

"It is a bad plan," continued Judge Mack, speaking of the neglected child, "to relieve parents of the responsibility of caring for the child. There are plenty of parents willing to get rid of their offspring, but they are bound by some financial responsibility. It is possible that the spark of moral responsibility may be kindled and the home relations rectified. In many cases the child is all right and the parents all wrong. We should show the parents that society really cares for them and their welfare."

Juvenile Court's Value.

"The juvenile court is one of the most valuable of modern inventions," said Judge Mack. "A new note was struck in our jurisprudence when the juvenile court theory was advanced. The institution is only twelve years old, but in that short time its value has been thoroughly demonstrated."

Following the addresses, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Corcoran Thom, president; Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, D. D., M. G. W. Russell, D. D., Rev. J. H. Bradford, and I. L. Blout, vice presidents, and John Joy Edson treasurer. The following were elected members of the board of management to succeed those whose terms had expired: William H. Baldwin, Col. Archibald Hopkins, Dr. George M. Robert, Miss Florence P. Spofford, and Adolph Seaton Schreier.

Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, presided. The invocation was delivered by Rev. William J. Keeley, and Rev. Abram Simon pronounced the benediction.

The Annual Report.

In the annual report of the treasurer, Mr. Edson announced that 1,425 individuals, churches, and organizations had contributed during the year for the work of the organization. The voluntary contributions amounted to $12,053. Walter S. Ufford, general secretary, added that the work of the organization requires about ten a day for its proper management.

In his annual report, Mr. Ufford stated that 1,644 families were given material relief during the past year. Eight hundred and fifty-eight families were given personal direction. The secretary said that three new lines of work had been started during the year—the development of a confidential exchange, the inaugu-

ANTI-TRUST LAW IS CRITICISED

Prominent Men Speak at New York Dinner.

New York, Nov. 22.—Four noted men, at a banquet of the Economic Club, at the Hotel Astor to-night, discussed the Sherman anti-trust law, under which the government at Washington has been proceeding to break up the great trusts.

Samuel Untermyer, lawyer, came out for the rigid enforcement of the Sherman law, but suggested means whereby the trusts might further be controlled. United States Senator Albert B. Cummins, insurgent of Iowa, picked flaws in the law, and suggested that there ought to be an explicit interpretation of the rights of corporations, so that all business might know precisely what is required of it.

Chancellor James R. Day, of Syracuse University, to which institution John D. Rockefeller has made liberal donations of Standard Oil money, denounced the Sherman law as iniquitous, and insisted that it ought to be repealed.

Congressman Martin W. Littleton declared himself in favor of repeal of the Sherman law, and insisted that another measure should be passed clearly setting forth the limits set upon corporate activity.

BLIND MAN STRUCK.

Taxi Hits Piano Tuner While Crossing the Street.

Run down by a taxicab driven by Dominic Naples, at Thirteenth and E streets northwest, last night, B. F. Parker, forty-five years old, a blind piano tuner, of 106 D street northwest, was taken to the Emergency Hospital with severe cuts and bruises about the head and face.

Parker walks about the city, day or night, guided by his sense of hearing. The sudden backing of the automobile horn disconcerted him and he remained stationary. The driver, Naples, believing he could see, continued on his course and eventually ran him down. Mr. Parker's injuries are not serious.

U. S. WILL BE NEUTRAL.

Mexico City, Nov. 22.—Harry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, replying to a dispatch to editorialists in The Washington Post, said that the United States and the United States would remain neutral in the activities of the American authorities on the border as a step toward intervention, declared that the United States government was taking no official attitude toward the Reyes movement as it had toward the Madero revolution, and was acting with the preservation of neutrality as its only motive.

ENDED HIS OWN LIFE.

Despondent Employee Shoots Himself Through Throat.

Henry H. Cornish, colored, of 1104 New Jersey avenue southeast, committed suicide by shooting himself through the throat with a shotgun yesterday morning, because he feared the loss of his position in the Census Office through ill health. Cornish sent his wife out of the room on some excuse and shot himself immediately afterward. He came to Washington nearly two years ago from Sumter, S. C.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS.

The Good Roads Convention in Richmond addressed yesterday by Richard Sylvester, chief of police of Washington and president of the International Association of Police Chiefs. Maj. Sylvester spoke on "Traffic rules and regulations."

The speaker told briefly of the traffic regulations in operation in the large cities of the country, and pointed out how they might be improved. Maj. Sylvester said that Washington is ahead of other cities in having a regulation providing a penalty for the collision of vehicles. The superintendent of police stated that he had just completed a study of the traffic regulations of various cities with the idea of recommending certain changes in the Washington regulations.

Maj. Sylvester emphasized the value of education by means of pamphlets, posters, and signs as a factor in enforcing the regulations.

D. W. STIER DIES SUDDENLY.

Agriculture Clerk Victim of Heart Trouble at Home.

David W. Stier, clerk in the Department of Agriculture and a resident of Washington for fifteen years, died suddenly of heart trouble at his home, 511 Longfellow street, yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Mr. Stier died before a physician could be summoned. Mr. Stier left home yesterday morning for work, complaining of indigestion. He went to his office at the Department of Agriculture, but returned home in a few hours. Mr. Stier spent the greater part of the afternoon on a couch in the dining-room. About 4 o'clock Mrs. Stier left the room, and when she returned was horrified to find her husband lying unconscious on the floor. A physician was summoned, but life was extinct.

Born in Steubenville, Ohio, Mr. Stier was fifty-two years old. He had been in the government service more than twelve years. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Anna Crawford Stier, and a daughter, Miss Mildred Crawford Stier. The body will be sent to Steubenville, his old home, to-day for burial.

FIND WIDOW DEAD.

Police Make Discovery at Home of Mrs. Davis.

With windows closed for more than twenty-four hours, the home of Mrs. Sarah R. Davis, sixty-five years old, of 1231 Rosedale street northwest, was forced open yesterday evening by the police and Mrs. Davis was found dead upon the floor of an upper room.

Dr. T. G. Williams, of Casualty Hospital, said she had been dead for several hours. Heart disease was the apparent cause of death. A son, William H. Davis, of St. Louis, an attorney, has been notified.

No lights were seen in the house on Tuesday night, the neighbors say.

PIANO TEACHERS MEET.

New Organization Will Give Series of Lectures.

The newly organized Piano Teachers' League met at Percy S. Foster's music house in G street last night. Prof. Heinrich Hammer, president; Emilie Fenn Christian, S. M. Fabian, Dr. Anton Glogotzner, B. ### Will Go to Jury To-day.

Lincoln Center, Kans., Nov. 22.—All three defendants in the case of Miss Mary Chamberlain, the school-teacher who was charged with the murder of a young girl, were to go to the jury to-day as the defense closed. Each admitted knowing of plans to tar Miss Chamberlain, and starting to where the attack was to be committed, but denied having a hand in the attack or in planning it. Present indications are that the case will go to the jury some time to-morrow.

White Town Cars

WHITE town cars are but the complete expression of the designing genius and the manufacturing ability of the great White factory—the natural consequence of the experience and ideals of these builders. For years the White factory has been noted for the kind and class of workmanship—for the grade of materials used—in other words, for the reliability of its manufacturing. For years and years the White Steamer was the most reliable automobile upon any market; then came the White gasoline car—the car, which by performance has been the wonder of the automobile world—the car, which by its design has far surpassed ordinary gasoline cars as the steamer surpassed the early types. With all these facts the automobile world is well acquainted—these were the facts of designing and manufacturing ability.

Sumptuously Built

THE town cars, in addition to the splendid building and designing, incorporated another thought called "style"—that beauty of line—that sumptuous finish—that greyhound trimness that marks the well-done product from the common kind. The most casual glance at the White town car at once convinces the most skeptical of the superb building, finishing and attention to details. Nothing that can contribute to make a car more comfortable and luxurious has been omitted from the White town car—they are the acme of luxury, and yet they are not large and cumbersome, but thread the crowded streets with ease.

For the asking we will send a dainty booklet for dainty women that tells all about these White town cars.
